Introduction

Dear Fellow New Yorker:

As the cost of energy remains at an all time high, the burden of how Upstate and North Country families will pay for home heating is a top concern of mine as we head into the winter months. As your Senator, I am working to ensure that our most vulnerable residents do not have to choose between food and heat this winter. There are a large number of programs dedicated to offering loans, grants, tax incentives and other types of assistance to help assist you with the expense of heating your home.

Finding the resources that meet your needs in this complex web of agencies can be an impossible task. For this reason, I have created this guidebook to serve as a starting point in providing information about what resources are available and how best to go about accessing this assistance. Its contents are by no means comprehensive and will be updated periodically as more details become available.

The guidebook is comprised of several defined sections that provide information about grant funding sources, strategies for writing effective grant proposals and ways in which my office can assist you in this process.

My Senate website (www.gillibrand.senate.gov) is continually updated with critical information about new programs available to you, how to access these programs, and where to apply. If you require assistance accessing a specific program, please contact any of the numbers provided in this packet, or my New York City office at (212) 688-7444.

Sincerely,

Kirsten E. Gillibrand

Section I: Energy Assistance through the New York State Office of Temporary and Disability Assistance

1) The Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP)

- The program is a federally funded grant opportunity that assists low income households with home energy costs. Funds are distributed from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services to states from the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) based on a need-based formula. The State of New York operates the HEAP program through the New York State Office of Temporary and Disability Assistance. Services are provided in each county through the County Social Services Office and the County Office for the Aging.
- For all assistance programs run through the State Office of Temporary and Disability Assistance, you may visit <https://www.mybenefits.ny.gov/selfservice/> to determine eligibility.

Additional Information:

- HEAP funds are used for financial support to offset home energy costs.
- Awards for this program depend on regional heating prices, but usually are around $50 for individuals whose heating expenses are included in rent but can be higher for individuals who pay their vendor directly for heat. The amounts are determined on a case by case basis.

Eligibility:

- HEAP eligibility is based on a variety of factors including income level, households with young children, elderly or disabled individuals.
- General guidelines for eligibility are as follows. Applicants must fit one or more requirements:
 - If your household's gross monthly income is at or below the current income guides for your household size as posted in the table below or
 - If you receive Food Stamps or
 - You receive Temporary Assistance or
 - You receive Code A Supplemental Security Income (SSI Living Alone)
- You may also check with your County Social Services or Office for the Aging to determine eligibility. At the end of this guide, there is a table with each county's contacts in these offices.

Please see the following page for additional eligibility requirements

- Additionally, the following table outlines eligibility for applicants based on total income per household;

Household Size	Maximum Gross Monthly Income
1	$2,129
2	$2,784
3	$3,439
4	$4,094
5	$4,749
6	$5,404

Household Size	Maximum Gross Monthly Income
7	$5,527
8	$5,650
9	$5,773
10	$5,896
11	$6,029
Each Additional	Add $468

Application Process:

If you would like to apply for the Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP), you may apply by mail, in person at your local social services office, or over the internet depending on your situation. You may apply for HEAP:

- By mail: If you received a HEAP benefit last year and reside in the same county that your application was filed last year or if you are age 60 or older. Applications may be downloaded from the HEAP webpage. The application document can be found here: <http://www.otda.state.ny.us/main/heap/documents/3421.pdf>
- In person: In person at the local social services office in the county in which you reside. The contact information and address of the local social services office can be found in Section V of this guide.
- By telephone: Contact your local case worker if you have previously been enrolled in the HEAP program or call your local social services office. Contacts are in Section V of this guide.
- Materials required for application: Applicants should bring documentation verifying residence, household composition, income, vendor relationship and vulnerability. (i.e. Proof of age if a household member is under age 6 or age 60 or older, or proof of disability if permanently disabled).
- Additionally, you may be asked, where applicable, for residents' social security numbers, previous utility bills or heating receipts, a signed statement detailing your situation from your landlord, proof of income, unemployment insurance benefits book, copies of social security or pension checks, a bank book and business statements from the previous four months if you are self-employed.
- You may also need to bring one of these for each household member: a birth or marriage certificate, school or baptismal records, social security cards and a drivers license.

Contact Information:

- The general HEAP hotline number is 1-800-342-3009
- However, if you would like to apply, please contact your local Social Services or Department of Aging office for additional information. Contact numbers are listed in Section V of this guide.

2) HEAP Emergency Benefit

- The Emergency Benefit program exists to provide assistance to eligible individuals who are facing a heat or heat related energy emergency and do not have resources available to resolve the emergency. This program can provide up to $3,000 in emergency assistance to repair heating equipment or simply to pay for fuel in unforeseen situations.

Eligibility:

- To be eligible for the HEAP Emergency Benefit, you must be experiencing one of these several circumstances;
 - Your electricity is necessary for your heating system or thermostat to work and is either shut-off or scheduled to be shut off or
 - Your natural gas heat is off or scheduled to be shut-off or
 - If you are out of or in danger of running out of fuel (oil, propane, wood, or coal) or
 - If your essential applicant owned heating equipment is inoperable
- Additionally, you must fit each of the following requirements;
 - Your income is at or below the current income guidelines as posted in the table below or you receive Family Assistance, Safety Net Assistance, Food Stamps or Code A Supplemental Security Income.
 - The heating and/or electric bill is in your name and
 - Your personal resources are less than $2,000 if no one in your household is under the age of 60 or less than $3,000 if any member of your household is age 60 or older.

Application Process:

- If you would like to apply for this program, an application must be turned in personally at your county's local department of social services. Contacts for these departments are in Section V of this guide.

3) Heating Equipment Repair or Replacement

- This program exists to help provide individuals help eligible low-income home owners repair or replace furnaces, boilers and other direct heating components necessary to keep the home's primary heating source functional.
- Benefit amounts vary based on the specific project, but are limited at $6,000.

Eligibility:

- To be eligible for Heating Equipment Repair or Replacement programs, the applicant must meet all established eligibility criteria, including established income and resource requirements.
- Benefits are paid directly to vendors after completion of all work for previously approved applications only.
- These requirements can be outlined by your local Social Services Department.

Application Process:

- If you would like to apply for this program, an application must be turned in personally at your county's local department of social services. Contacts for these departments are in Section V of this guide.

Section II: United States Department of Energy

The average home in our region pays approximately $2,200 a year in energy costs. This estimate varies based on size of your home, energy usage, and a number of other factors, but an energy audit can point to many simple and cost-effective ways to reduce your energy use and loss, and save money on your energy bills. According to the Department of Energy, the average energy efficient home in New York can save on average more than $800 a year on energy costs.

The information below will allow for home and business owners to reduce the costs of heating their homes and facilities through increasing efficiency.

1) The Home Energy Saver

- The Home Energy Saver is designed by the U.S. Department of Energy and the Environmental Protection Agency to help consumers identify the best ways to save energy in their homes.

Additional Information:

- It is an interactive program that allows you to calculate and foresee the benefits of the cutbacks prior to making them. In your own home, you have the power to reduce energy demand, and when you reduce demand, that means you create less greenhouse gas emissions, which keeps air cleaner for all of us and saves on your utility bills. Plus, reducing energy use increases our energy security.

Program Location:

- The program can be found at: <http://hes.lbl.gov/consumer/>

Section III: New York State Energy Research Authority & Development Authority

New York State Energy Research and Development Authority (NYSERDA) is a public benefit corporation created in 1975 under Article 8, Title 9 of the State Public Authorities Law through the reconstitution of the New York State Atomic and Space Development Authority. NYSERDA's earliest efforts focused solely on research and development with the goal of reducing the State's petroleum consumption. Today, NYSERDA's aim is to help New York meet its energy goals: reducing energy consumption, promoting the use of renewable energy sources, and protecting the environment.

NYSERDA seeks to develop a diversified energy supply portfolio, improve market mechanisms, and facilitate the introduction and adoption of advanced technologies that will help New Yorkers plan for and respond to uncertainties in the energy markets. These plans can be advanced through the funding opportunities offered by NYSERDA.

1) Home Performance with ENERGY STAR

- Home Performance with ENERGY STAR Program created a network of independent home improvement contractors that are accredited by the Building Performance Institute (BPI). BPI is a national resource for building science technology that sets standards for assessing and improving the energy performance, as well as the health and safety of homes. Each participating contractor has been trained in taking a 'whole-house' approach when testing your home and identifying energy efficiency improvements.

Additional Information:

- These BPI contractors work locally and can assist an interested home or business owner in the modification of their structure. In addition to the actual work of installation of new systems, the contractors will help find federal programs to pay for the work and assess the efficiency of the house.

Eligibility:

- To qualify for any incentives or financing through Home Performance with ENERGY STAR®, you must use a participating BPI Accredited Contractor. A list of participating contractors in your area can be found at:
<http://getenergysmart.org/Resources/FindPartner.aspx?t=4>

2) Energy Efficiency Improvements for New York's Farms

- NYSERDA provides energy audits and feasibility studies that identify cost effective energy efficiency improvements that will lower energy bills, increase productivity and reduce environmental impacts. In addition, NYSERDA provides incentives to farmers who implement the energy audit recommendations through our Enhanced Commercial/Industrial Performance Program and/or a reduced interest rate through our Loan Fund Program.

Additional Information:

- An energy audit can be provided at little to no cost to the farmer. Typically, NYSERDA will pay a qualified engineering firm to do a walk through analysis of the energy use on your farm highlighting the latest energy efficient technology improvements available with the most cost effective savings.
- Energy audits generally focus on high-energy use systems, as well as, the needs of the farmer and other energy efficiency opportunities.
- These systems include the milking parlor operation, refrigeration, ventilation, and lighting.

Section IV: New York State Office of Temporary and Disability Cooling Programs

1) The Home Energy Assistance Program Cooling Component

- Households that include a member who has an ongoing medical condition that is made worse by extreme heat may be eligible for HEAP funded cooling assistance that could include installation of an air conditioner. Because the amount of funding is very limited, cooling assistance will be provided on a first come, first served basis

Additional Information:

- The household income limits are broken down by a monthly basis and is determined the number people per household.
- To see the exact breakdown, please visit:
<http://otda.ny.gov/main/programs/heap/program.asp#cooling>

Eligibility

- Households that have received a 2009-10 regular HEAP benefit of more than $1.00 are income eligible for 2010 cooling assistance.
- Households that have not received a 2009-10 regular HEAP benefit of more than $1.00 must have income which does not exceed the 2009-10 maximum HEAP guidelines, or must be currently in receipt of Temporary Assistance, Food Stamps/Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program or Supplemental Security Income Code A benefits to be income eligible for 2010 cooling assistance.
- In addition to meeting the income eligibility requirements, to be eligible for 2010 cooling assistance, at least one member of the household must have an acute medical condition that is exacerbated by extreme heat, and said condition must be documented by a physician.
